Recently, the U.S. Secretary of Health and Human Services, Robert F. Kennedy, required the U.S. FDA to take measures to initiate the revision process of the "Generally Recognized as Safe (GRAS) Final Rule", intending to cancel the current mechanism for companies to certify food ingredients as "generally recognized as safe".

This move is to increase the transparency and supervision of food ingredient approval, which is part of the "Make America Healthy Again" (MAHA) campaign. It lists ultra-processed foods, genetically modified ingredients, cell-cultured meat and plant-based foods as key targets, which may have a significant impact on synthetic biology food companies.
